

Second Rembrandt now hangs at Queen's University

A second Rembrandt painting now hangs in the Queen's University art gallery.

The painting — valued at $16 million (US) — was unveiled to the public Thursday at the university's Agnes Etherington ArtCentre, now home to two of Canada's six Rembrandts.

The paintings join over 100 other original European pieces donated from the private collection of American doctors Alfred and Isabel Bader.

— NEWS SERVICES

Clipped By:

library535

Wed, Feb 23, 2022