

Have You Heard? Charles Zadoks Host Supper Dance on Silver Anniversary

By DOROTHY PARNELL

A DELIGHTFUL SUPPER DANCE in a more or less tropical setting was given by the Charles Zadoks Tuesday night at their home on North Club Circle. The outdoor affair was actually the silver wedding anniversary of the Zadoks, although many of the guests were unaware of this.

But the dozens and dozens of beautiful bouquets throughout the rooms of their home attested to the fact that some knew. In her usual artistic manner Mrs. Zadok distributed them and other types of arrangements as though they were designed for the very rooms.)

A huge tent was erected for the supper tables and guests danced on a specially built platform on their lawn.

Huge trees had been built in a tropical manner and no one would have guessed they were the inside poles to hold up the tent. Fresh moss had been ordered to cover the poles thickly up to a height of fifteen feet, than variegated ivy was used and, as in palm trees, woodwardia fern formed the giant tops, the delicate fronds spreading wide and creating a beautiful effect under lights.

On the individual tables were centerpieces in low bowls of every shade of gladioli blossoms, interspersed with white phlox. Black cupids spiked the arrangements. On the buffet table was a black-amoor figurine which served as candelabra and vase. The candles were set about the base, the figure holding a huge round vase filled with exotic fruits and leaves with grapes falling from the edges.

Mrs. Zadok wore a handsome gown of pale gray lace over silvery white satin, a slim column affair with an interesting panel arrangement at the back. Out of towners wearing attractive gowns were Mrs. Bernard Gimbel, wife of the chairman of the board of Gimbel Brothers, wore an aquamarine and white gown, the skirt accented with rhinestone sprays. Mrs. Nass, whose husband is treasurer of Gimbel Brothers, was in a bouffant skirted frock with a wide band of colorful flowers done in sequins. Mrs. Grinsfelder, whose husband is vice president and general manager of Gimbels in Pittsburgh, wore white, the bodice heavily encrusted in rhinestones, pearls and beads.
