

Contributing to the Progress of Milwaukee and Its Symphony

A prized painting, a delicate instrument, a couturier creation—all reflect the diverse interests of Mrs. Harry Lynde Bradley.

A member of the Board of Directors of the Milwaukee Symphony, she has not only been a benefactor but an active worker since its inception.

The Bradley donations to the Milwaukee Art Center have made this museum's modern painting collection recognized throughout the art world.

Mrs. Bradley's wide interests embrace the world of fashion, fine arts, music and the theater. Besides her cultural background, she is active in her four apparel shops: Zita, Inc., in Milwaukee and Naples, Fla.; Peg Bradley and the Bermuda Sports Shops, Inc., in Whitefish Bay.
